

Report of D. Thompson

Sept. 22, 1926.

Re: JANE GIBSON

105.1291
DT/Gibson

Endeavored to locate Morris Bolber who formerly was in the butcher business at 226 French street, New Brunswick, N. J., to whom Jane Gibson is said to have endeavored to sell diseased cattle, etc.

Bolber is no longer in New Brunswick, having left here about five years ago. I talked with his brother Benjamin, who is in the grocery and butcher business at 398 Comstock Street, New Brunswick. He informs me that after leaving New Brunswick, Morris went to some town in Pennsylvania and about two years ago he heard that he was around New York City, but could not say where. The brothers are not on friendly terms.

I was unable to locate anyone who could give me a line on Bolber's present whereabouts.

Mr. Palzer suggested that I endeavor to drop in and talk with Kossak relative to the troubles which his family had with Mrs. Gibson.

The last address we have for Kossak is 308 Pacific street, Paterson, N. J. so I have not gone into that city to locate him.

Respectfully yours,

D. T.